A TRACK COACH SELECTED TODAY

THE ALUMNI ATHLETIC BOARD OF DEPAUW UNIVERSITY EXPECTED TO SELECT A COACH TO LEAD THE OLD GOLD CINDER PATH ARTISTS THROUGH THE COMING SEASON, AT A MEETING IN INDIANAPOLIS TODAY.

REFUSE TO DIVULGE NAME

The selection of a track coach for the 1915 season was expected to have been made by the DePauw Alumni Athletic Board at a meeting in Indianapolis this afternoon. Heber H. Ellis, graduate manager of athletics, went to Indianapolis to attend the meeting. Mr. Ellis declined to divulge the name of the man who without doubt will be the new coach, when interviewed by a Herald representative this morning.

It is understood that the Alumni Athletic Board has made negotiations with an Olympic champion runner, but the name of the athlete is not known. The prospects for a winning team this season are very bright, according to Mr. Ellis and the Athletic Board will engage the services of the best coach obtainable.

The selection of a football coach for 1915 will be made at a meeting of the board at a later date. Applications have been received from many football men who wish to lead the DePauw team of next year, and the Athletic Board will consider all of the men. A man who has had both playing and coaching experience will be selected.

HORSE THIEVES AT PUTNAMVILLE

VALUABLE ANIMAL TAKEN FROM THE JOE CROMWELL FARM, NEAR THE STATE FARM, SOMETIME SATURDAY NIGHT—WAS LED AWAY WITH HALTER—ANIMAL VALUED AT MORE THAN $150.

OFFICERS FIND NO CLEWS

Some time during Saturday night an 8-year-old brown mare, about 15 hands high and weighing about 1000 pounds, was stolen from the barn on the Joe Cromwell farm near Putnamville. The horse is owned by Mr. Cromwell and is valued at more than $150.

The robbery was not discovered until Sunday morning when Mr. Cromwell went to the barn and found that the mare was gone. Who ever had taken the horse had simply untied it from its stall and led it away.

Mr. Cromwell immediately notified Sheriff Boes, who got into communication with all nearby towns and asked that they be on the lookout for the stolen horse. It was only a few weeks ago that a horse was stolen from the barn on the Charley Bran farm, near Putnamville.

It is believed by some persons who reside near the Cromwell farm that the horse was taken by a prisoner from the State Farm, who ran away from the prison Saturday night. The farm officials will not give out any information or say whether one of the prisoners ran away Saturday night or not. It is said, however, the state farm officials were unusually active Sunday morning which would indicate that something unusual had happened.

It is the belief of some people that a prisoner left the farm Saturday night and that he took the Cromwell horse to assist in his flight. The Cromwell farm corners on the State Farm.

The Standard Bearers of the Locust street church will meet Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock with Miss Delilah Wilson at her home on Bloomington street.

YEGGS USE NITRO ON POST OFFICE SAFE AT LADOGA

SECURE STAMPS VALUED AT $600 AND MAKE A HASTY DEPARTURE—BURGLARS SEEM TO HAVE LADOGA POSTOFFICE SPOTTED AS ONLY FEW MONTHS AGO IT WAS LOOTED.

EXPLOSION WAS HEARD

LADOGA, Ind., Feb. 20.—Yeggs paid this place a visit at about one o'clock this morning and after breaking into the postoffice used nitro to blow up the safe and escaped with $600 worth of one and two cent stamps, as they grabbed 2000 of each kind. The burglars seem to have a special pick at the Ladoga postoffice, as this is the second time within a few months that they have paid this place a visit.

The report of the explosion was heard by Logan Runk, John Anderson, J. F. Warfel and Harry Huntington, all of whom live in the immediate vicinity of the postoffice. Mr. Warfel and Mr. Huntington were both of the opinion when they heard the nitro let loose that the regular stunt of robbing the Ladoga postoffice was being staged and they hurried to the scene, but were too late to find the robbers as they had made a hasty departure. A year ago, when the postoffice was robbed Mr. Runk heard the explosion, but was not sure that it was not a Monon train. At that time he turned over twice and went to sleep. It could not be learned whether he repeated the performance this morning or not.

The yeggs secured an entrance through the rear window of the postoffice. They had secured a "jimmy" at the blacksmith shop owned by Walter Riddlebarger and with it pried up the window. If the nocturnal visitors were the same who robbed the postoffice just before Johnnie Lowe's time was out as postmaster last February they found a new safe on which to operate as Postmaster Arthur Runk bought one after he took charge.

As was the case with the old safe a year ago, the robbers failed to open the inner chamber of the new safe this morning. Stamps of the denomination of one and two cents were kept in a special compartment in the outer part of the safe and it was these that the yeggs took away with them. In the inner chamber of the safe were stamps of the value of five cents and upward and the money was also in this vault. The thieves could not get at these valuables at all.

The explosion played havoc in the postoffice as pieces of the blown safe was hurled about in every direction. The stove was knocked over and as it had fire in it, it is a wonder that the building was not set on fire. It is believed that the ashes in the stove smothered the fire. When the postoffice was robbed last February the yeggs got about $1300 in stamps. No trace of these robbers was ever found.

Albert Gardner, of Russell township, ex-county commissioner, was here today to attend to some road business.

DRIVE MEN AWAY WITH A SHOTGUN

TWO STRANGERS WHO FORCED WAY INTO HOME OF JAMES CHRISTENBERRY, WHO RESIDES NEAR FERN, SUNDAY EVENING, LEAVE WHEN WEAPON IS LEVELED AT THEM.

CAUSES MUCH EXCITEMENT

Two strangers who forced their way into the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Christenberry at Fern, while Mrs. Christenberry was alone in the house at about 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening, were driven away by the brave woman, who secured a shotgun and leveling it at the men ordered them to leave immediately. The men left and as they ran from the house Mrs. Christenberry fired one shot at them. It is believed, however, that she did not hit either of the men.

Mrs. Christenberry was alone in the house, the husband being at work as night watchman at the Root Glass plant, near Fern. It was about half-past seven o'clock when she was called to the door by some one knocking. Mrs. Christenberry opened the door a little way and asked who it was. Before she could get an answer one of the men shoved his foot in the opening so that the woman could not close the door.

The men then forced the door open. Mrs. Christenberry at first attempted to hold the door and in doing so her hand was slightly injured. When she saw that the men would force the door open she ran back into the house and got a shotgun. As the men entered the house they found the woman with a gun leveled at them.

Ordered to leave the house at once the men did so. As they ran from the house Mrs. Christenberry followed them and fired one shot toward them. It is believed, however, that the shot did not strike either man.

Attracted by the shooting neighbors hurried to the Christenberry home. Mrs. Christenberry stated that one man was tall and the other short. Each wore a dark hat of soft felt pulled down over his face. Both men were Americans. A posse was organized but the hunt for the men was without results. Mrs. Christenberry states that the men demanded admission to the house and that she has no idea whether they intended robbing the house or what they wanted. The events came in such rapid succession that she hardly had time to realize just what was going on.

THRASHER HURLS BRICK WITH TELLING EFFECTS

A little controversy between "Polly" Thrasher, a north end character, and Albert Aiken, a Monon signal repair man, was ended when a brick hurled by Thrasher, struck Aiken on the side of the head. Aiken's ear and face were injured sufficiently to bring hostilities to a close. The affair occurred Sunday afternoon at about 3 o'clock at the old woolen mills in north Greencastle.

The machine will work east from Jackson street and the north sewer main will be completed immediately. The north main runs east on Liberty street to College avenue and then east. INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 19.

Chalk up another mark in favor of the Public Service Commission. Mr. C. F. Murphy, one of the members of the commission, has returned from New Albany where the United Gas & Electric Company is in control and holds the boards on the part of the public service corporations of that city. Upon the petition of ten of the citizens of that city for an investigation and hearing upon the live question of rates for light and power, this action was taken. The commission sent down their experts who completed a physical valuation and an audit of their books and then before the hearing or evidence took place the corporation doing business there agreed on a rate that was even lower than would have been allowed had all the evidence been hard. The rates in vogue now are a nine, six and five and a half cent rate for light, and eight, five and three cent rate for power. The rate agreed upon and upon which will supply the citizens and users of electricity in the future is a decrease of the rates now of sixteen and two-thirds for light, and twenty per cent for power. All this is due to a public service commission, a commission endowed with power granted by the state of Indiana to stand between the people and the public service corporations supplying the state and the various cities of the states with a service of this nature. The experts have made their calculations and in a city the size of New Albany there should be thirty-six hundred users of electric light and power in order to make that corporation a paying and growing institution. In this case there were but sixteen hundred who used light and power, and consequently the rate would be higher than the average rate, had not the corporation agreed to decrease their rates as stated. But when the whole matter is summed up, there is no denying the fact that a public service commission is the solution of this question and stands for the people. There is a bill introduced in this general assembly which would take away many of the privileges of the commission and lodge them with the commission.

ty commissioners and the city councils. Such a bill is not in the interest of the people and the users of electric light and power, but it throws this whole question open to politics and to officers many of whom would undertake to help themselves at the expense of the public. It is the opinion of the writer that the people of the state would better afford to grant even more authority to the public service commission.

Senator Robinson of Marion county, has the nerve to read the primary plank of the Democratic state platform and then undertake to chastise the Democrats for their timidity in not carrying out their pledge. Senator Robinson had better read his own party platform, and better inform himself as to its provisions. The Republican party of Marion county promised to economize, to retrench and to stand by the people, yet Senator Robinson and every Republican in the senate voted against decreasing the salary of prosecuting attorney of Marion county. Senator Robinson distinguished himself in a speech in which he said that such a reduction would be unfair to the prosecuting attorney expected if elected to receive twenty thousand dollars a year, and to reduce this sum to seventy-five hundred dollars would be an injustice to this officer. Poor prosecuting attorney, how the heart of Senator Robinson bleeds for him, and how little does his heart bleed and few are his thoughts for the "dear people" to whom he pledged his sacred pledge. This is the sort of statesmanship one sees in the Indiana General Assembly, and especially from the minority side of the General Assembly.

Hon. John W. Behymer of Tipton, the next supervisor of oils for Indiana, was in the city a few days ago. He will take his place at the head of this department the first of the coming month. He took occasion to inform the writer that all appointments in this department would be made by the supervisor of oils and no one else; that he would not only make the appointments but that the responsibility of the appointments would also be assumed by him. Those who have been perniciouly active in carrying their case to the Governor and others had better see John Behymer and let it go at that.

It now enjoys a world wide reputation and many thousands have testified to its excellence. For sale by all dealers.

Poor Market for Rye

In Bulletin 136 of the Iowa Experiment Station, entitled "Forage Crops for Swine," the results of a one year's test of "hogging" ripe rye are given, as follows:

"The ripe rye was 'hogged-down' without corn. Dry lot feeding has shown that rye, to be more efficient, had best be supplemented with a concentrate containing considerable protein and ash. We therefore fed meat meal at the rate of one fourth pound per head morning and evening, or one-half pound daily.

"The hogs were exceptionally thrifty spring pigs averaging practically 70 pounds at the beginning of the experiment. Eighteen head were used on the plot of 3 acres. That these hogs were thrifty and of the profitable sort is shown by their growth previous to being turned into rye, as well as their record in the corn field after they left the rye field. Their gain while hogging the rye during the 36 days they were in the field was only 269 pounds daily on each hog. These same hogs gained close to two pounds daily when 'hogged-down' corn in which green rye was sown at the last cultivation.

"The yield of the ripe plot was determined by harvesting a number of representative areas. The yield was exceptionally heavy, at the rate of 41.25 bushels to the acre. The rye harvested in determining the yield was fed back to the hogs.

"It would have been much more profitable to have sold the rye upon the market rather than to have 'hogged' it down. Taking an average price of 60 cents a bushel for the market price of rye and assuming that it takes 15 cents a bushel (which is high when rye yields 40 bushels) to cut, shock, thresh and market it the field value is 45 cents a bushel. An acre of such yielding rye, therefore, is worth $18.56. The hogs after paying for the meat meal and when selling for $5.00 and $6.00 returned, respectively, $1.71 and $3.39 for the 41.25 bushels. In allowing the hogs to harvest this crop, there is a decided net loss of $16.85 and $14.67 on an acre, when hogs sell, respectively, for $5.00 and $6.00. Hogs at $5.00 and $6.00 returned, respectively, 4.2 and 9.4 cents per bushel for the standing rye.

"The feeding of some corn to the hogs while they are in the rye field along with the supplement is sometimes recommended. It may be that under such conditions they will consume the rye with greater corresponding profit, in that they will not have to eat so much of it daily to insure gains. Where the hogs are compelled to subsist upon rye alone they will not consume enough of it to make gains, being inclined to eat only slightly more than a maintenance ration."

Many of our hog raisers in this part of the country have followed the practice of allowing their hogs to harvest rye after it has crinkled down and it is hardly conceivable that they would continue a practice so unprofitable as this one test seems to show it to be. This method of utilizing the rye crop may not be so good as some others but it's a pretty good guess it will on the average pay more than "4.2c to 9.4c per bushel" for the rye.

Mules on the Farm

The mule has been the standard work animal of the southern states for many years. Climatic conditions make the mule more to be relied upon than the horse in the rice, cane and cotton districts. Some of the qualities that make mules valuable for specific lines of work, including work on the farm, are, first, their endurance. The best evidence of the mule's endurance is shown by the large use made of them in the army. They are indispensable for the moving of army supplies, which is about the hardest work required of draft animals. The mule is a rugged animal and an easy keeper. He is more cheaply raised and when at work can be kept on a smaller ration than a horse. The mule is of greater longevity than the horse and therefore cheaper for long service. The mule is rarely subject to the horse diseases, nor is he likely to have blemishes which destroy the value of many colts. With a mule, if there are any blemishes, they do not impair his value, because he is not purchased for beauty but for work. The mule can stand heat and cold better than the horse. He is not so nervous or high-strung as the horse, and therefore loses less energy in useless fretting. He has saner instinct of self-preservation. In fact, one of the chief characteristics of the mule is his ability to take care of himself under all circumstances. The mule instinctively avoids holes, sharp obstacles, barbed wire fences and various other forms of danger which are not so successfully avoided by the horse. In short, the mule will stand greater hardships, has more vitality, can be kept sound more easily, and when properly instructed is just as steady and reliable as the horse.

A common error is that all mules are vicious. To "kick like a mule" is a proverbial and misleading saying. Mules are no worse than horses in this respect. While it should be denied that mules are naturally vicious, it is undoubtedly true that some are made so by ill-treatment and abuse. The same is true of horses. In general the mule is quiet and patient in temperament, and is a steady, willing worker.

They say the cow is half the herd and the bull is the other half, but neither is much account without a good dairymaid.

It is no more necessary to have a kicking mule than a kicking horse; they are both caused by bad management and training.

Don't feed corn to the young colts. It has not enough bone material.

HEED THE WARNING.

Many Greencastle People Have Done So.

When the kidneys are weak they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disorder, many days of suffering may be saved. Weak kidneys usually expel a dark, ill-smelling urine, full of "brickdust" sediment and painful in passage. Sluggish kidneys often cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequent rheumatic twinges.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only. There is no better recommended remedy.

Mrs. W. H. Johns, 403 north Indiana street, Greencastle, says: "Several years ago I suffered from sharp twinges through my hips and sides and felt languid. Hamilton, Allie C. Dobyns, Sarah Westover, Frances Crow and the defendant, Edward W. Hunnicut, each inherit one-ninth of the estate and Helen Lemon Phillips and William G. Lemon each receive one-eighth of the estate. The plaintiff in the cause also asks that Isaac S. Peck be appointed by the court as the commissioner. Attorneys Allee, James & Allee filed the action.

R. and also a member of the Masonic order at Greencastle. He was a kind and devoted husband and father and a true friend to all who knew him.

Where no farewell tear is shed."

SAYS RACE BILL SHOWS EFFRONTERY OF SATAN

Sir—The effrontery of the devil was no more strikingly illustrated in the days of Job, when Satan showed up among the sons of God, than in 1915 when the gambling interests in this and surrounding states are trying to pass through the general assembly of Indiana a law to legalize horse race gambling. It is astounding, almost unbelievable that such a measure as senate bill No. 229 has already passed the senate.

Gambling is gambling and by our present state law is outlawed. The enforcement features of our present state law should be strengthened rather than to open the flood gates through which the gambling hordes of the nation will flow to Indiana.

New York Disgraced.

New York was disgraced by such a law for two years. But the aroused indignation of the people, under the leadership of Governor Hughes, swept it off the statutes of even New York.

Are the days of the Louisiana lottery to return?
God forbid.

There are between 30,000 and 40,000 professional gamblers in the United States who make a living by fleecing gullible suckers. Gambling is vicious in principle.

Six days shalt thou labor is the right economic law. But gambling proposes to get something for nothing and no self-respecting man should want something for nothing. "Value for value" is the right commercial law of exchange, which gambling utterly ignores.

Evils of Gambling.

The votaries of gambling become so enthralled by this exciting passion as to be unfitted for both home life and business responsibility. Gambling makes a crop of embezzlers and defaulters every year. It fosters the daredevil, thug spirit and graduates young men into highway robbers and yeggmen.

It would be a disgrace to our state if the house should be strengthened and then forced against even the pestiferous forms of gambling, such as punch boards and diet throwing at tobacco stands and hotel lobbies.

Every law-abiding citizen of the state should stand in his protest against this threatening outrage.

D. B. JOHNSON,
Superintendent Indiana State Civic Union.

The Coming Revival Services.

Interest in the coming revival at Locust Street Church has been increasing from week to week, and as the time draws near it seems more marked. The revival committees, having the arrangements in charge, are working together and every one is looking forward to a great meeting.

At the morning service Sunday Rev. Beck preached a very fitting sermon. He called attention in a very clear way to each man's personal responsibility not only for his own soul's salvation but for those around him. He showed how intolerance had characterized religion in some periods and bigotry in others. But this decade was neither. Denominations do not fight over points of doctrine any more. We have drifted to extreme tolerance. Religiously the age is an easy-going, go-where-you-please, do-as-you-think age. Poison labels are mostly torn off, and danger signals torn down. He showed how men of today need to be strong in order to stand up against the tides of public opinion, against social evils, and sin everywhere. It takes a strong wall to check the ocean tide and throw it back upon itself. A Christian man or woman, who is anchored in Christ, can stand against any worldly tide.

The pastor's night message was on Religious Change in the Religiously Brought Up. His text was, "For Me to Live in Christ." He showed how Saul of Tarsus was brought up in a religious home and how he took religious training. He was a young man of good character, splendid habits and high ideals. Such a young man as some would say Jesus could do very little for. He was so good how could he be better if he should become a Christian? He did become a Christian and no greater reform ever occurred in a life than took place in that life. He turned to Jesus and made Him all in all in his life. For him to live was Christ. That gave Jesus His chance and He made a great Christian of him. He can make a great Christian out of any man who will put his life in Christ's hands as Paul did and say, "For me to live is Christ."

PROPERTY OWNERS OF COLLEGE AVENUE NOTICE.
Our city council will begin soon the street improvement on College avenue. They will leave it to the property owners to decide how wide the grass plot and the drive way shall be. All interested in this matter are invited to meet at Minshall laboratory tonight at seven o'clock.

GREENCASTLE CELEBRATES WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

Washington's birthday was celebrated in Greencastle today by a dismissal of all the city schools and the university classes. The postoffice was closed during most of the day and the banks did not open their doors for business. Otherwise Greencastle was about the same as usual.

Many interesting toasts were given at the annual banquet of the Alpha Phi Sorority held at the Claypool Hotel Saturday evening. Vernon, "To Be or Not to Be."

The table was arranged effectively with red roses and candles hooded with red shades gave the light. The members of the active chapter at DePauw University present were Miss Sibyl Lindley, Miss Frances Miller, Miss Kathrine Kingsley, Miss Martha Lee, Miss Gladys Light, Miss Ruth Ogle, Miss Anastasia Cox, Miss Eva Mark, Miss Ethel Nuber, Miss Irene Goffeny, Miss Margaret Hill, Miss Gertrude Davis, Miss Mildred Wright, Miss Helen Current, Miss Lyota Ewing, Miss Helen Taylor, Miss Josephine Davis, Miss Winifred Lokwood, Miss Haley Mendenhall, Miss Virginia Melligan, Miss Maurine Baker, Miss Pauline Kerchival and Miss Gladys Moon.—Indianapolis Star

Miss Jane Hartley returned to Terre Haute today after a short visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hartley, on south Locust street.

The first classes of the third term of the night schools will be held this evening. The beginning classes in sewing and cooking will begin this evening. The advanced classes will meet Tuesday evening. The enrollment in all the classes is large.

Celery Done in Other Ways

Celery is served in more variety than formerly. Both cooked and uncooked it figures on the restaurant menu in ways not known to the average housewife, says the New York Sun. Uncooked celery stuffed is served as a hors d'oeuvre, a salad or an entree. When intended as an appetizer at the beginning of a meal, choose deeply grooved stalks and fill the depression evenly with a preferred combination of cream and seasoned. Cream cheese mixed with any of the strongly flavored cheese is the usual choice. On this cheese filling place a line of small cream capers. The stalks should be about three inches long and two should be served to each person.

The same arrangement answers for a salad course, with the exception that there is more variety to the filling. Four stalks piled crisscross are served in each portion and on the side of the plate there is some attractive little receptacle for salad dressing. Sometimes a deeply curled lettuce leaf holds mayonnaise or a lemon or a green pepper basket is filled with French dressing. Each stalk is then taken in the fingers and dipped into the dressing.

A salad of this kind served at a recent luncheon consisted in each portion of two long stalks of celery, each laid in a narrow leaf of prosciutto. The filling was of finely chopped boiled beets mixed with grated horseradish. It was packed so closely in the groove that there was no danger of displacing when the celery stalk was lifted and dipped in the stiff mayonnaise which formed a little mound at the side of the plate.

A filling of finely chopped chicken salad stalks of celery are chosen. These are allowed to simmer just long enough to be tender and are then stuffed with forcemeat or any highly flavored mixture of fish, fowl or meat. The stuffed stalks are then arranged in a baking tin and the tip of the filling browned in a hot oven. With each portion should be served a spoonful of cream sauce.

Boiled celery with Hollandaise sauce can be made into a delicious entree ranking with asparagus or artichokes, and, like them, served as a separate course. The bunches are washed as carefully as possible without separating the stalks. They are then tied to preserve their shape while boiling. Small, tender bunches require almost an hour's cooking.

To serve split each bunch in half, which is a single portion, and serve with Hollandaise sauce made from the water in which the celery has boiled, as this strengthens the vegetable flavor.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP.
(By Lew Ellingham.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 21.—Two things have operated to cause the state board of finance to conclude that it was good business to make a temporary loan at this time, and this the finance board as done. One reason for this conclusion was the pressing demands being made by those who suffered loss in cattle and hogs by the dread hoof and mouth disease and the other reason was the simple fact that loans can be made before the first day of March at a rate of interest lower than at any other period of the year. Demands are heavy this time of the year from the various benevolent institutions, and another item of importance was the purchase by the officials of the Northern Prison of eighty thousand dollars worth of scissel, which enters largely into the manufacture of binder twine. So in order to clean the slate of all these bills and to transact the business of the state in a business way, the finance board has arranged for a temporary loan the amount of which is four hundred thousand dollars. The rate of interest is two and a half per cent, perhaps the best bargain in money borrowing that has ever before been effected by the state or any of its municipalities. This will be the end of temporary loans during the first half of the calendar year, and unless the demands are too great during the latter part of this year no more loans will be necessary. This loan will be repaid both in principal and interest on the thirtieth day of June after the semi-annual June settlement takes place, and then Indiana's financial slate will be cleaned and free from any incumbrance of this character. The hoof and mouth disease has cost the state and the people of the state more real money than any other disaster of this kind. It came as it were like a cloud from a clear sky, and before any organized effort could be formed to combat it, thousands upon thousands of cattle were infected. The state veterinary department ruled the day with an iron hand, and thanks to their effective efforts it is believed that the disease is practically eradicated from the state. The greatest of precautions, however, will have to be exercised, but it is determined at whatever cost, to drive the fatal foot and mouth disease out of existence so far as Indiana is concerned. In this effort the federal government rendered valuable aid and assistance. Not a dollar of the temporary loan was borrowed for the general running expenses of the state. These extraordinary conditions arise in the transaction of every big business institution, and in this instance the state board of finance acted with wisdom in making a temporary loan, canceling the I. O. U. and preserving the credit and standing of Indiana. The truth is, there never should be a time when the state owes an obligation that it can not reach down in its sock and pay the debt. This condition has not prevailed in Indiana at least not within the last twenty years, but should the Democratic party be intrusted with official responsibility, it is their hope within the next few years to make this happy condition a reality. Here is hoping they may be given the opportunity to make good upon this the most important feature of political life.

The Rinear compulsory primary bill was killed by indefinite postponement in the senate, the Jones compulsory primary bill has passed the house by an overwhelming vote, and now there is talk of a new bill granting partial primary and it would take a Philadelphia lawyer to forecast the action of this general assembly as to primaries. Apparently every one has some notion as to primaries, those favoring them predict that the Democratic party will go straight to the bow-wows should they fail to comply with their platform pledge, while the anti-primary individual believes that primaries will ruin the most prosperous political party, and that in principal they are a snare and a delusion. The writer doubts whether a partial primary will satisfy any one who has any views upon this much discussed public question. The legislative majority had better enact into law a primary that embraces the nomination of every officer in the state, or else they had better enact into law a primary that embraces the nomination of every officer in the state, or else they had better enact no primary at all. It would be better to face the question squarely. There is plenty of argument upon both sides of the primary, and plenty of reasons to take a position one way or the other. As the days of this session can now easily be counted, the fate of any primary legislation is in doubt.

All the sports who have been camping around the capitol and praying for the passage of the racing bill, have quietly folded their tents and departed. Governor Kistner's declaration closed all possibilities of such legislation and those interested had the good sense to see the handwriting on the wall, and like a true sport they smiled and gave up the ghost.
